

Japanese Teacher

Job Description

Updated 2024

Job Summary

Language teachers at CSL provide quality, highly-relational classes that are encouraging, confidence-building, and effective in helping students reach their unique goals. They seek to foster community, through the connectivity of language, in all they do. They are focused on bringing people and cultures together.

We are currently in need of a part-time Japanese teacher. Preference given to native speakers with teaching experience and/or candidates who also have experience teaching Japanese.

Responsibilities & Duties

- Teach a minimum of 3 hours per week (6+ hours preferred)
- Teach virtually (on Zoom) and in-person (at our office in St. Elmo)
- Teach a wide variety of ages, ranging from young children to adults, in both group and one-on-one settings
- Plan well for every class and provide appropriate resources to students through CSL's Google Drive
- Work to integrate Comprehensible Input (CSL's foundational methodology) principles and activities into every class (training will be provided if you're not already familiar with CI practices)
- Check in to CSL's communication platforms (Gmail and Slack) at least once every weekday and respond to all communications within 24 hours and all internal task requests within 48 hours
- Complete all required weekly administrative tasks (i.e. attendance, scheduling, etc.)
- Attend monthly team meetings, quarterly check-in meetings with CSL's manager, quarterly colleague support meetings with a fellow team member, and various professional development opportunities and team functions throughout the year
- Maintain professionalism and an encouraging, constructive, and validating demeanor in all interactions with students and fellow team members

Qualifications & Skills

- Advanced proficiency in Japanese (preference given to native speakers)

- (preferred, but not required) Advanced proficiency in another language you would also be willing to teach (i.e. ASL, Arabic, Chinese, French, German, Italian, Korean, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, etc.)
- Japanese teaching experience
  - or Japanese interpretation experience + teaching experience (of any kind)
- Ability to develop customized curriculum and remain flexible and adaptable to suit student needs/desires
- Excellent people skills
- Team player mindset; but able to work well independently
- Passionate about sharing your language and culture with others and supporting students on their journey toward achieving their unique language learning goals
- Willing to be trained and eager to learn

- Degrees and certifications related to Japanese and/or teaching preferred, but not required
- Preference given to applicants who are native speakers or who live/work with native speakers on a consistent basis

- If candidate has other administrative, communications, and/or marketing skills and experience, these will also be taken into account and could lead to a broader role at CSL beyond the teacher role

Compensation & Perks

- Flexible schedule (i.e. you can choose what days/times you want to teach that match our current student needs/demand)
  - Please note that weekly hours may fluctuate, depending on the demand of student needs and interests
- Opportunity to teach both in-person and remotely
- Supportive and empowering team culture + community of continuous learning and innovation
- Paid professional development opportunities

- $30/hr teaching rate
- $15/hr administrative rate (for required meetings, trainings, and other administrative tasks)
- Additional perks after six months
  - After completion of six months of teaching for CSL, compensation rates and opportunities may increase depending on a teacher's amount of weekly teaching hours
